When reading through this publication, please note that your status as a domestic or international student is based on your citizenship, not where you have studied. You are a domestic student if you are an Australian citizen or permanent resident or a New Zealand citizen or hold a permanent humanitarian visa. You are an international student if you do not meet the criteria listed above, even if you are currently attending high school or studying at another institution within Australia.

Please note: The information in this brochure is indicative and should not be relied upon to make your final decision. Visit our website for more up-to-date information.
With you all the way

When you accept your place at the University of Melbourne, you’ll be joining a community of exceptional people who believe in the power of collaboration and mutual support.

Whether our passions lie in physics or performance, the one thing we all believe in at Melbourne is advancing the boundaries of what’s possible. And we can only do that together. That’s why the Melbourne Scholarships Program is one of the most generous and comprehensive in Australia.

There is a wide range of scholarships listed here, and it is worth reading through the eligibility criteria for each. You may be surprised at what you can apply for! There are scholarships for domestic and international students; scholarships awarded on merit only and some that take financial need into account; some to help you stay here in Melbourne, and some to help you travel the globe. There are scholarships that support your whole course or help you explore a specific interest.

Wherever you are, and whatever your passion, with a Melbourne Scholarship you can turn ambition into achievement.

Law lecturer Ian Malkin is so passionate about student success that he set up his own scholarship. The Ian Malkin Internship Scholarship supports Juris Doctor law students who may struggle to afford internships in the not-for-profit or government sectors.

“It would be quite costly if they have to support themselves and would be terribly unfair if they missed out on opportunities due to lack of privilege,” Professor Malkin says.

That’s the sort of commitment our students can expect.
Bringing out your best

Our comprehensive scholarships program is designed to help you build on your potential as you study.

Are you in Year 10? The Kwong Lee Dow Young Scholars Program is an exceptional pathway to continued success at university. If you’re in your final year of high school and expecting a high ATAR, make the most of it with a Melbourne Chancellor’s Scholarship.

But this is just a start! Most of our scholarships are awarded to continuing students at different points in their studies, so it’s quite likely that you’ll pick up a scholarship, bursary, prize or travel grant during your time here. Applying for more scholarships as you study will help you build an impressive resume and expand your horizons.

The Melbourne Model encourages you to challenge yourself and try out different ways of thinking, giving you the perspective and communication skills necessary for success in the global workplace. Our scholarships are just one way in which we encourage you to follow your curiosity and study what you love, because that’s how you thrive.

Doug Brumley was awarded a string of scholarships during his University of Melbourne studies and believes success breeds success.

Doug won several awards during his Bachelor of Science honours degree, including support from Newman College. These paved the way to the prestigious Gates Cambridge Scholarship that supported him through his PhD overseas — and helped him land his dream job as a lecturer in applied mathematics back at Melbourne!

Doug can now show his students that accumulating awards is a great boost for your confidence and your CV.

“Scholarships like these encouraged me to push even further. Working hard for a string of scholarships from the University of Melbourne can help you present yourself well.”

Doug’s Melbourne awards include:
- Melbourne National Scholarship
- Dean’s Prize (Faculty of Science)
- Dwight Prize in Physics
- Department of Mathematics and Statistics Summer Vacation Scholarship
- Professor Nanson Prize (Mathematics and Statistics)
Grants, bursaries and prizes

In addition to our scholarships, we offer many prizes, grants and bursaries that can help you get the most out of your time at university.

Grants are available to undertake volunteering or leadership activities. Excel in your studies and you could pick up a coveted prize for academic achievement. Bursaries are available for a variety of needs and can ease the financial pressures of uni so you can focus on your studies.

Many student bursaries have been established by generous bequests and donations to assist students in financial need. The University awards over 500 one-off bursary payments per year, varying from $200 to $10,000.

To be considered for these grants, you must provide evidence of financial need, and submit an online Student Financial Assessment.

“My scholarship helped me financially, and it also provided me with a network of friends. Receiving a scholarship drove me to reflect on how I can assist others who are less fortunate than me, in order to benefit individuals and society collectively.”

Ewe Jin Tan, Bachelor of Commerce, Commerce Opportunity Bursary

When Paris Mordecai adds up the benefits of her latest scholarship, it’s not just the $22 000 in living allowances she’s thinking about.

The KPMG Indigenous Pathway Scholarship winner also receives an internship with one of Australia’s most high-profile companies, and says that’s something you can’t put a price on.

“Providing scholarships such as this, getting Indigenous kids involved with business is so important. Without the scholarship I may never have considered it,” Paris, who is also a Chancellor’s Scholar, says.

“Having that sort of encouragement is so valuable. I can’t wait to see where this takes me. I feel like the scholarship and the internship is just the beginning.”

The scholarship, open to second-year Indigenous students in Arts, Commerce or Science, was developed in consultation with Murrup Barak, Melbourne Institute for Indigenous Development.

Paris, a Trinity College student, has her eye on pursuing academia. She also hopes to continue to mentor young students through the University’s Aspiring Scholars Program.

Paris also received a University housing bursary, a Trinity College General Scholarship and an academic achievement award for excellence in first-semester studies in 2017.
Undergraduate Access Scholarships

For many, the road to uni isn’t easy. If you qualify for consideration under our Access Melbourne admissions program, you could land a scholarship that can help.

Originally from Mildura, Bachelor of Science student and Mildura Alumni Scholarship recipient Bridget Loughhead always dreamed of studying at Melbourne. The only thing standing in her way was the cost. “My parents couldn’t afford to pay for me, because there are four other kids at home. I was always going to have to work for a year after high school to save up enough money.”
Scholarships for Indigenous students

If you’re an Aboriginal or Torres Strait Islander coming to the University of Melbourne, you’ll be part of a thriving family of over 300 Indigenous students who are making Melbourne home.

We support Indigenous students with a range of programs to help them achieve their very best – from the Melbourne Chancellor’s Scholarship for high achievers and Access scholarships, through to collaborative awards developed by the University in partnership with government.

The Indigenous Scholarship Program administered by Murrup Barak, Melbourne Institute for Indigenous Development provides a raft of specific benefits for books, housing bursaries, living costs and monetary grants.

Encouraged and supported, our Indigenous students enjoy a level of success that consistently ranks above the average for Group of Eight university students.

“Having the DELWP Scholarship has made university more accessible. I have the flexibility to buy extra materials and software for myself so I can work from any place, and don’t have to come in to a lab if it doesn’t suit me on a certain day. Having the extra financial support goes a long way.”

Laura Brown,
First recipient of the Victorian Department of Environment, Land, Water and Planning (DELWP) Diversity and Inclusion Scholarship for Bachelor of Design students, a Medley Hall, University and Victorian Government partnership.

Overseas study scholarships

Studying overseas can be one of the most enriching experiences of your time at uni. With our program of scholarships and grants behind you, the world lies ahead.

We send over 1300 students abroad each year on semester, year or short-term intensive programs. With one of our scholarships or grants, you could be studying business in Beijing, French in Québec, science in Estonia or anthropology in Santiago sooner than you think.

Do you strive to be an ambassador and future leader in your field? There are a number of national scholarship programs supporting students to develop their leadership, networking and ambassadorship skills while studying overseas as part of their Australian degree.

Our program includes University and government-sponsored awards covering a range of student circumstances, from high academic achievement through to financial need. Loans are also available.

Below is a small selection of what’s on offer. Discover more about these and other opportunities through our website: mobility.unimelb.edu.au

“It completely redefined my university experience, adding immeasurable depth,” Commerce student Claudia Wilson says of her exchange to Fudan University, Shanghai. “I can’t imagine if I hadn’t gone on exchange.”

Residential college scholarships

The University’s residential colleges have a long history of providing financial support for students relocating to Melbourne to study.

Scholarships and bursaries offered by our residential colleges are designed to enable more students to benefit from an education at the University of Melbourne and one of the residential colleges.

In 2017, nearly $5 million was distributed to about a third of all resident students via scholarships and bursaries, with an additional $2 million dispersed via part-time employment opportunities.

Scholarships and bursaries are available to new and continuing residents, with specific support for regional, rural, interstate, international and Indigenous Australian students, and those who are the first in their family to attend university.

Scholarships and bursaries may be awarded on the basis of academic excellence and/or financial need. As all applicants are treated on a case by case basis other factors may contribute to the awarding of a scholarship or bursary. You may find your course has a joint scholarship with a particular college.

You can apply for a scholarship or bursary when you submit your application to live at a residential college. See the colleges website for more information about the application process for each college.

“Moving from another state was a big step financially. My college scholarship let me focus more on extracurricular activities and my coursework, allowing me to excel.”

Sport scholarships

The University has a proud tradition of supporting outstanding student-athletes in their sporting and academic pursuits.

Sport scholarships are provided as part of the University’s Elite Athlete Program. The program also includes an elite athlete entry scheme for prospective student-athletes and flexible student assistance for recognised elite athletes whose sporting activities may clash with their studies.

Student-athletes selected to represent their country of citizenship may also apply for an International Travel Grant of up to $1500 annually.

Scholarship application dates vary. Prospective students can usually apply for a conditional sport scholarship in August for the following year.

Late applications will usually be open until week two of Semester 1 each year. The number of scholarships awarded is determined by the scholarships committee.
